2022 Budget Address

After a very difficult and unprecedented 2020, the Brown Administration was very hopeful for a return to normalcy in 2021. Though some aspects of our lives have begun to normalize, the city, its residents, and businesses continue to deal with the extended pressures created by the COVID-19 pandemic. Supply shortages and labor restrictions have further exacerbated the problems with which we continue to deal. However, thanks to much-needed assistance from Senator Bob Casey and Representative Matt Cartwright, and their extensive efforts in passing the American Rescue Plan Act, the city has been able to weather the storm thus far. It's important that this administration continues to strengthen these relationships which have proved truly vital to the resurgence of our great city.

2022 will be another challenging year for the city. As costs continue to rise, it is imperative that we continue to look for ways to both control and curtail our expenses wherever possible while still providing the high-quality services that our residents and businesses deserve. My administration has worked hard to do just that over our last two years in office. We have made it a point to focus on areas such as pensions, healthcare, and various operational costs to help limit the burden that our taxpayers are saddled with. By the end of 2021 we expect to complete a pension debt transaction that will reduce the city's annual MMO, having a direct impact on 2022 as well as future budgets and resulting in millions of dollars in savings. Taking a hard look at our health benefits has allowed us to reduce our 2022 healthcare costs by approximately $500,000. A change in our life insurance carrier has resulted in $50,000 in annual savings. Modifying our recycling program from single-stream to a dual-stream collection process will add yet another savings to the tune of approximately $200,000. These are a few examples of how we have fought to protect our taxpayers, and that sentiment will always be one of high importance to my administration.

Though we have implemented cost saving measures and worked to increase revenues, it's important to note that the federal economic recovery efforts are critical to our journey out of this pandemic. The American Rescue Plan will play a major role for Wilkes-Barre in 2022 and future years. The financial assistance provided under this initiative will give us the short-term flexibility we need to continue moving the city forward while not adding to the financial pressures that our taxpayers already face.

I am proud to announce that this budget will not include a tax increase for 2022. In fact, after much consideration, and taking into account our recently achieved savings, I will be asking City Council to rescind the $25 increases to both the residential sewer and residential recycling fees from 2021. With their cooperation, each fee would then return to $50 per unit from the current rate of $75 per unit.

As always, I greatly appreciate the consideration and strong support of the residents of the City of Wilkes-Barre for my administration and its efforts to move the city through these troubling times and into a brighter future.
